

San Juan Islands Forestry Products & Business Directory

2018

Northwest
Natural Resource
Group

This directory is intended as a resource for individuals, landowners, forestry workers, and county officials who want to learn more about island wood products and the local businesses that are utilizing our unique forest resources.

The San Juan islands are seeing a renewed interest in growing, harvesting, and building with local trees. The businesses in this directory offer a viable alternative to mainland wood products for all types of projects. Our thin soils and scant rain mean slower growing trees with tight clear grain, perfect for trim, flooring, and furniture. Many local houses, barns, and sheds are clad in rough sawn local boards often from the land where the building sits. The architects and builders in this directory have created buildings entirely from local timber with beautiful results.

Historically the islands had a booming timber industry as the forests were cleared for farm land and our harbors made easy access to barge the logs to mill. As the resources were exhausted the economy shifted and it's only in recent years that the forests have regrown sufficiently to offer high quality timber at economically viable scales. The growing number of businesses that deal in local wood are part of a larger ethic of forest stewardship that sees the islands' forests not only as a resource, but as a vital part of our overall community health. Safeguarding these forests while sustainably managing and harvesting from them is offering new opportunities for the island economy.

We hope you find this information useful and if you or your business would like to be included in future editions please contact us we'd be happy to have you.

This directory is published by the Northwest Natural Resource Group with generous support from the USDA's Western Center for Risk Management and Education and The Mountaineers Foundation.

some is pasture, orchards and gardens. Our farm stand sells fruits, vegetables and plants.

We are planning on selling value-added wood products after purchasing a portable mill in addition to chips and firewood. Timbers, fencing, logs, sawdust, floral greens, edible and medicinal products.

A vertical photograph of an arborist climbing a tree trunk. The arborist is wearing a red shirt, black pants, and a safety harness, and is secured by ropes. The tree trunk is dark and textured. The background is a dense forest of green trees under a clear blue sky. On the right side of the image, there is a semi-transparent rectangular box containing the title text.

Our sawmill provides custom-milled rough-sawn lumber (primarily Douglas-fir and Western Red Cedar) to island craftsmen. Our specialty in producing good-quality timbers, siding, flooring, and trim blanks for local construction projects. By-products that we sell include sawdust, planer shavings, and firewood. Our focus is on sustainably harvesting our family-owned forest with an emphasis on good forest stewardship. Our Douglas-fir is slow-growing and is an excellent product for use in flooring and trim projects. We are currently researching the development of a larger market for these products and analyzing the viability of adding a drying kiln.

Using sustainable practices appropriate for our bioregion, our goal is to create functional and beautiful landscapes for our Northwest neighbors, and to teach the skills necessary to keep them productive and healthy. Our domain knowledge is deep and extensive, with many years of building productive sites on Orcas Island and the greater Pacific Northwest. We design landscapes based on permaculture ethics and principles.
Permaculture design and implementation, edible and medical products, hardwoods, and
